

Why Intuition Now?

Intuition is an innate element within all of us. It's always present. It's always activated. It's a constant. It doesn't discriminate. On some level or another we are aware of intuition. A person comes into our thoughts. Minutes later the door bell or phone rings. It is that person contacting us. We awake from a dream that bespeaks of death. The next morning we learn that our grandmother died. Suddenly our hand reaches out for no apparent reason only to catch a vase that suddenly falls off the table. We walk into the bank only to find "our hair standing on end" or our gut churning. We turn around and walk out. We learn later that a robbery was about to take place. We are stopped at a red light. It turns green. We step on the accelerator. Suddenly, a voice is screaming inside for us to STOP. A car has just run the red light. An accident is avoided. We are in a hurry to get to the movie, but traffic is backed up. We are late. As we rush into the theatre we run into a long-lost friend.

I've given you examples. Ok, but what is intuition? Intuition defies definition for it operates outside of intellect. Our linear (logical) mind cannot grasp it. It functions outside of time and space.

Intuition is a fundamental part of our greater self. It's the conduit that connects us to the Universe—to "God's" world—a means to commune with a reality that our five senses are incapable of tuning into. It's a guiding force. It's "Spirit's" hand pointing the way.

We are programmed as a society to override intuition. We rely on our intellect to direct our lives, not this innate resource. Through the centuries, as humanity has "advanced" we have moved away from this vital connection. We have become too busy, too technologically reliant, too stressed, hurried and indifferent, way too removed from nature. Looking at the state of the world through greater awareness, the price humanity is paying for overriding this vital life force flow is frightening.

Why intuition now? Intuition provides a reliable sense of truth, a reliable sense of direction. More than ever, with the changes upon us, with our world as we know it being turned upside down (or right-side up), intuition is now the tool. If our five senses equal a 110 voltage force, intuition is a super nova charge lighting the way to otherwise unseen possibilities. In other words, Knowledge.

Intuition is a function of our energetic (spirit) selves, our greater awareness. The more we heal—expand our awareness—the more we become connected to intuition. The more we experience it the more we trust it. The more we trust it the more we rely on it to guide our lives. To live through intuition is to live from Knowledge that comes from the unseen world. To live from this greater world is to live in peace and harmony—what the world most needs. The time is now.
